Handwritten Burmese text on a palm leaf manuscript, organized into approximately 10 vertical columns. The script is in an older form of the Burmese alphabet. The text is written in black ink on a light brown, aged leaf surface. There are several dark, irregular marks and holes scattered across the leaf, likely due to insect damage or environmental factors. The columns of text are separated by faint vertical lines or natural creases in the leaf. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but aged historical document.
