Handwritten text in Burmese script, likely a manuscript or a page from a book. The text is written in a cursive style and covers the majority of the page. It appears to be a list or a series of entries, possibly related to a library or a collection. The text is written in a dark ink on a light-colored paper. The script is a form of Burmese, and the text is arranged in several lines across the page. There are some markings that look like page numbers or section markers, such as '၁၁' and '၁၂'. The text is somewhat faded and there are some ink blots or stains on the paper.

Handwritten Burmese text on the right side of the palm leaf, concluding the script.

Handwritten Burmese text on a palm leaf manuscript. The script is in a traditional style, likely from the 18th or 19th century. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines across the length of the leaf. The ink is dark, and the leaf shows signs of age, including some staining and wear at the edges. The text appears to be a form of Burmese, possibly a historical record or a literary work. The characters are finely etched into the surface of the dried leaf.

Handwritten Burmese script on aged paper, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is arranged in several horizontal lines across the page.

Handwritten Burmese text on a palm leaf manuscript, featuring multiple columns of script and several circular holes for binding.
