Handwritten text in Burmese script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines across the page. The script is cursive and characteristic of traditional Burmese writing. The document appears to be a page from a larger work, possibly a chronicle or a legal record, given the formal nature of the script and the presence of some larger characters that might be titles or section markers. The paper is aged and shows signs of wear, including some staining and a slightly uneven texture.

Handwritten Burmese text on a palm leaf manuscript, consisting of approximately 12 lines of script.

Handwritten text in Khmer script, likely a manuscript or document. The text is arranged in several columns and lines, showing signs of age and wear. The script is cursive and dense, typical of traditional Khmer writing. The document appears to be a historical record or a literary work, given the complexity of the characters and the layout. The ink is dark, and the paper is aged and slightly discolored. There are some small holes and stains visible on the surface of the paper.
