Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines across the page. The script is dense and difficult to decipher due to its cursive nature and the age of the document. The paper shows signs of wear, including discoloration and some dark spots.

Vertical handwritten text on the right margin, continuing the script from the main body of the document.

Handwritten Burmese script on a palm leaf manuscript. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines. The script is a traditional form of Burmese, likely from a historical or religious text. The characters are finely etched into the surface of the dried leaf. The text is dense and covers most of the width of the leaf. There are some small circular marks or holes, possibly from insect damage or intentional perforations for binding. The overall appearance is that of an ancient document.

Handwritten Khmer text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is arranged in several lines across the page. The right side of the document is significantly damaged, with a large portion missing, indicated by a jagged, dark edge. The visible text includes various characters and symbols, some of which are punctuated by small black dots. The paper is aged and yellowed.
