Handwritten Burmese text on a palm leaf manuscript. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines, written from right to left. The script is a traditional Burmese style. There are several dark circular holes visible along the length of the leaf, which were traditionally used for threading a cord to bind multiple leaves together into a book format. The ink is dark, and the leaf itself is a light tan color with some natural texture and slight discoloration.

Handwritten Burmese script on aged paper, likely a manuscript or historical document. The text is written in multiple columns, showing signs of wear and fading.

Handwritten text in Burmese script, likely a manuscript or ledger. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines across the page. The script is cursive and dense, with some characters appearing to be in a different script or dialect. The text is written on aged, slightly discolored paper. There are some small marks and a hole visible in the center of the page.

Handwritten Burmese text in a single line across the page, likely a list or inventory. The text is written in a cursive script and includes various numbers and characters. On the far right, there are two distinct numbers: 66567 and 66568.

Handwritten text in a script, likely Burmese, arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines. The text is written in dark ink on aged, slightly discolored paper. The script is cursive and dense, with some characters appearing to be numerals or specific religious/philosophical terms. The lines are roughly parallel, following the curve of the paper. There are some small dark spots and signs of wear on the paper, particularly in the center and towards the right edge.
